NOTE FROM THE PASTOR:

Dear Parishioners:

A recent article by Michael Walker was posted on The Splendor of the Church website entitled: “7 of History’s Most Brilliant Scientists People Forget Were Catholic.”

First mentioned is Louis Pasteur (1822-1895). Pasteur invented pasteurization, which was a major breakthrough in humanity’s quest to prevent disease. Walker writes, “Pasteur was once praying the Rosary on a train when a young man criticized his devotion as a manifestation of scientific ignorance. Pasteur simply had to introduce himself to dispel this spurious charge of superstition.” Pasteur was once credited as saying: “The more I study nature, the more I stand amazed at the work of the Creator.”

Gregor Mendel (1822-1884) is often labeled “The Father of Genetics”. He was an Augustinian priest who calculated the odds of inheritance in his monastery garden. St. Giuseppe Moscati (1880-1927) was a pioneer in treating diabetes with insulin. Doctor Moscatti declared to his colleagues: “In all your works, look to Heaven, to the eternity of life and of the soul, and orient yourself then much differently from the way that merely human considerations might suggest, and your activity will be inspired for the good.”

Henri de Broglie (1785-1870) won the Nobel Prize in Quantum Mechanics. He was a devout Catholic who originated the wave-particle equation named for him. Fr. Georges Lemaître (1894-1966) is often called “The Father of the Big Bang Theory”. He originated the idea that following an initial explosion of massive proportions the universe continues to expand. His theory is widely misattributed to Edwin Hubble.

Doctor Jerome Lejeune (1926-1994) discovered trisomy 21, the genetic defect that causes Down syndrome. Walker states, “While he labored with the intent to find a cure, he decried the pervasive usage of his discovery in prenatal testing for abortion. His pro-life stance may have cost him a Nobel Prize, but St. John Paul II appointed him as the first president of the Pontifical Academy of Life instead.” His cause for canonization is under way. Lejeune had a poignant pro-life message: “The enemies of life know that to destroy Christian civilization, they must first destroy the family at its weakest point—the child. And among the weakest, they must choose the least protected of all—the child who has never been seen; the child who is not yet known or loved in the usual meaning of the word; who has not yet seen the light of day, who cannot even cry out in distress.”

The last mentioned Catholic scientist is Galileo Galilei (1564-1642), who is usually referred to as “The Father of Modern Astronomy”. Although he clashed with ecclesiastical authority he was a practicing Catholic until the day he died. Galileo said once, “The Bible shows the way to go to Heaven, not the way the heavens go... I give infinite thanks to God, who has been pleased to make me the first observer of marvelous things.”

Walker concludes his article well, by stating, “Ergo, from basic genetics to interplanetary physics, the Church collectively has made more contributions to knowledge about our universe than any one entity in history. The litany of faithful scholars goes on and on!”

We Catholics do well to know not just our faith, but our family tree.

God Bless You!

Fr. Eric
